- The Companions of the Longbow at St Aldhelm's Fair reported that they had a very busy, successful day. They estimated that between 200 & 250 people 'had-a-go'. They also stated that 60-70% were under 16. The 'show & tell' area was very busy and lots of people asked questions and were very interested in the items on display. All in all the Companions of the Longbow estimated that 300 people visited the Cloister Gardens on the day. It was suggested that the donations tin was made clearer as to its purpose, visitors assumed that the donations were for the Companions of the Longbow.
